Charleston, USA

Married couple Michael Trent and Cary Ann Hearst, aka Shovels & Rope, have spent their career blending their different influences: bluegrass, rock'n'roll, country, indie, folk, punk, gospel, British glam rock and New Orleans jazz. Along the way they have also written the best-ever record about what happens when you go on tour with your wife and your baby – Buffalo Nickel. This month they return with their "gritty, sweeping and profound" album By Blood, and host their annual festival, High Water, in the beautiful Riverfront Park in Charleston. As well as checking out the band themselves, hear music from Leon Bridges and Jenny Lewis, have an oyster masterclass from Seaborn Oyster Co and try food by Jacques Larson, the chef from the brilliantly named Obstinate Daughter restaurant.
