Nashville, TN – Venerated singer/songwriter David Ramirez has announced the March 21st release of All The Not So Gentle Reminders (Blue Corn Music), his most ambitious album to date, and 2025 US and UK/European tour dates (see list below). The twelve-song collection is an eclectic musical journey, featuring richly textured arrangements, ethereal acoustic balladry, sweeping choruses and hints of cabaret. Listen to the semi-autobiographical, theatrical new track "The Music Man" HERE.

All The Not So Gentle Reminders may be the most liberating album in Ramirez's body of work. The album, his sixth LP, is a creative revelation. "I love all the records I've made in the past," says Ramirez. "But in making them, there was always the thought in the back of my mind of where and what it could get me...this time it was all about just the joy of making it, about having fun with it."

This approach is evident throughout All The Not So Gentle Reminders right from the opener "Maybe It Was All A Dream" with its ambient tone that slowly builds to the brink of a crescendo before an abrupt halt, before leading into the soulful synth-pop of "Waiting On The Dust To Settle." "I Got People" is bouncy classic piano-pop while "Holiday (Crush)" pulses with an intense, indie-rock sensibility. Ramirez wanted the music to have as much of a voice in these songs as the lyrics. His lush orchestration on tracks such as "The Music Man," "Dirty Martini" and "Nobody Meant To Slow You Down" are as powerful and intoxicating as the space and subtle nuances of "Deja Voodoo," "Do Not Disturb Me" and the loungey, retro closer "Dreams Come True."

All The Not So Gentle Reminders is a wide-ranging musical tour-de-force with Ramirez's remarkable voice as the constant thread spinning stories and painting poetic imagery throughout. Whether through a faint whisper, a smooth croon or belting at the apex of a song, David Ramirez has a gift for conveying passion and emotion with each and every track. All The Not So Gentle Reminders is a reminder of the power music has to bring out many different emotions, often in the same song.
