Mary Gauthier – Reckoning
Press Highlights

“Like [Woody]Guthrie, the 64-year-old Gauthier belongs to a rare pantheon of artists that includes John Prine, Steve Earle, Townes Van Zandt, and Bob Dylan who other musicians refer to as, “songwriter’s songwriters…“In these divisive and turbulent days, now, more than ever, Gauthier’s compassionate voice is needed.”” – No Depression

“This is heady, perceptive writing from Gauthier, from whom we expect nothing less. ‘Reckoning’ may well be her most impactful album to date, though ‘Mercy Now’ is certainly in the same conversation.” – Glide Magazine

"This is a courageous and powerful album from an important artist at the peak of her powers... the beauty of her songs is always evident & entertaining.”
– Americana Highways

"‘Reckoning’ itself is indeed a 'sweet sound of salvation,' carrying us through the hollows of our souls and the hopelessness in our hearts through the darkness and into the glimmers of shining love and hope where reckoning and restoration may occur.”
— Folk Alley

"A Mary Gauthier album is always something worth exploring.”
— Saving Country Music

“No musical theatrics, just heavy tales in a stripped-down setting that result in songs that are both burly and beautiful.” – The Alternate Root

"This is an important album, about as good as any that Gauthier has recorded, brilliantly produced, undeniably political and yet aspirational too. It’s a wonderful addition to her canon.” – AmericanaUK

"Gauthier has many qualities as a songwriter, but that ability to universalise the intense emotions we will all at some stage go through and touch listeners’ hearts directly, all over the world, is certainly why her work always calls me back."
— Entertainment Focus

"Mary Gauthier's new album reckoning is a lived-in, compassionate collection of songwriting a la Bruce's Nebraska” — Rainbow Rodeo

"Mary Gauthier's 'Reckoning' is a sparse, powerful record that connects intimate experiences of death, grief and damage with a larger reckoning with history, violence and consequence." – The 13th Floor
